

A Horse Can Change a Life

2019 ANNUAL REPORT

FIELDSTONE FARM

A lush green forest with tall grasses in the foreground. The background is a dense wall of green trees, and the foreground is filled with tall, thin grasses and plants, some in focus and some blurred.

Horses change us. They teach us about trust, responsibility and cooperation. They push us to become stronger and more confident. Their intuitive nature helps us heal and learn who we are. And they bring smiles to everyone they meet. Just watch how our 40 horses improve the lives of our 1,000 students and help them grow and accomplish things they never thought they could.

“If I could work with John all day, I would.”

Jake,
Freshman at Gaitway High School

Gaitway helps teens succeed

The structure of traditional high school wasn't working for Jake. Teachers were moving too fast for him and his grades were slipping. His counselor recommended Gaitway High School at Fieldstone Farm and Jake thought an alternative school on a farm could be pretty awesome.

Now Jake starts his day filling up water buckets for the horses. When he's done, he takes about 200 steps from the barn to the Gaitway classrooms for math, English, and his other subjects. For physical education, he rides a quarter horse named Tex. But whenever he gets the chance, he works right alongside John, our Facility Manager, for vocational training.

"What John does is really cool. He's always problem solving," Jake says. "It's like being in an escape room where you are trying to figure things out." One day it could be replacing a fence post, and another day it could be cleaning the bearings on a carriage wheel.

"I like him to think from a 30,000-foot view so I always ask how he would approach a problem before we get started," says John, who holds a master's in education. John teaches him about planning, follow-through, and having high standards. "Jake wants to work, and I really enjoy teaching him."

Now in the spring semester of his freshman year, his grades have jumped to solid B's and he's enthusiastic about his future. Jake wants to become a welder and is applying to Auburn Career Center. Next year, he hopes to spend his mornings at Gaitway and afternoons at Auburn.

Caring for 40 horses takes many hands

Our volunteer Equine Management Team (EMT) plays a vital role in helping manage our herd. Every Wednesday this group of 20 volunteers arrives eager to help in any way they can. One week it could be bathing the horses, another week it could be fitting saddles or acquainting the horses with a new piece of equipment.

“They are amazing. I don’t know what I would do without them!” says Jinene, Equine Director, who started the volunteer team about 25 years ago to serve as an extension of her barn staff.

The team has evolved into something beyond horses, says Kay, who has served as an EMT since the group’s inception. “We are a community. Some of my best friends are EMTs or retired EMTs.”

Over the years they have shared happy times like weddings, engagements and births, but they also have supported each other during the hard times like serious illnesses, deaths and divorce.

On Wednesdays, you see them in action. They all arrive about 15 minutes early to catch up on each other’s lives, with little groups congregating in the tack room. Lots of smiles, hugs and laughs. Then it’s down to business. Jinene reviews the list of tasks, divides them into groups, and then they are off to work.

The Equine Management Team is just one part of our 250-member volunteer organization whose dedication, enthusiasm and commitment make it possible to serve our 1,000 students each year.

Butterscotch finds a home

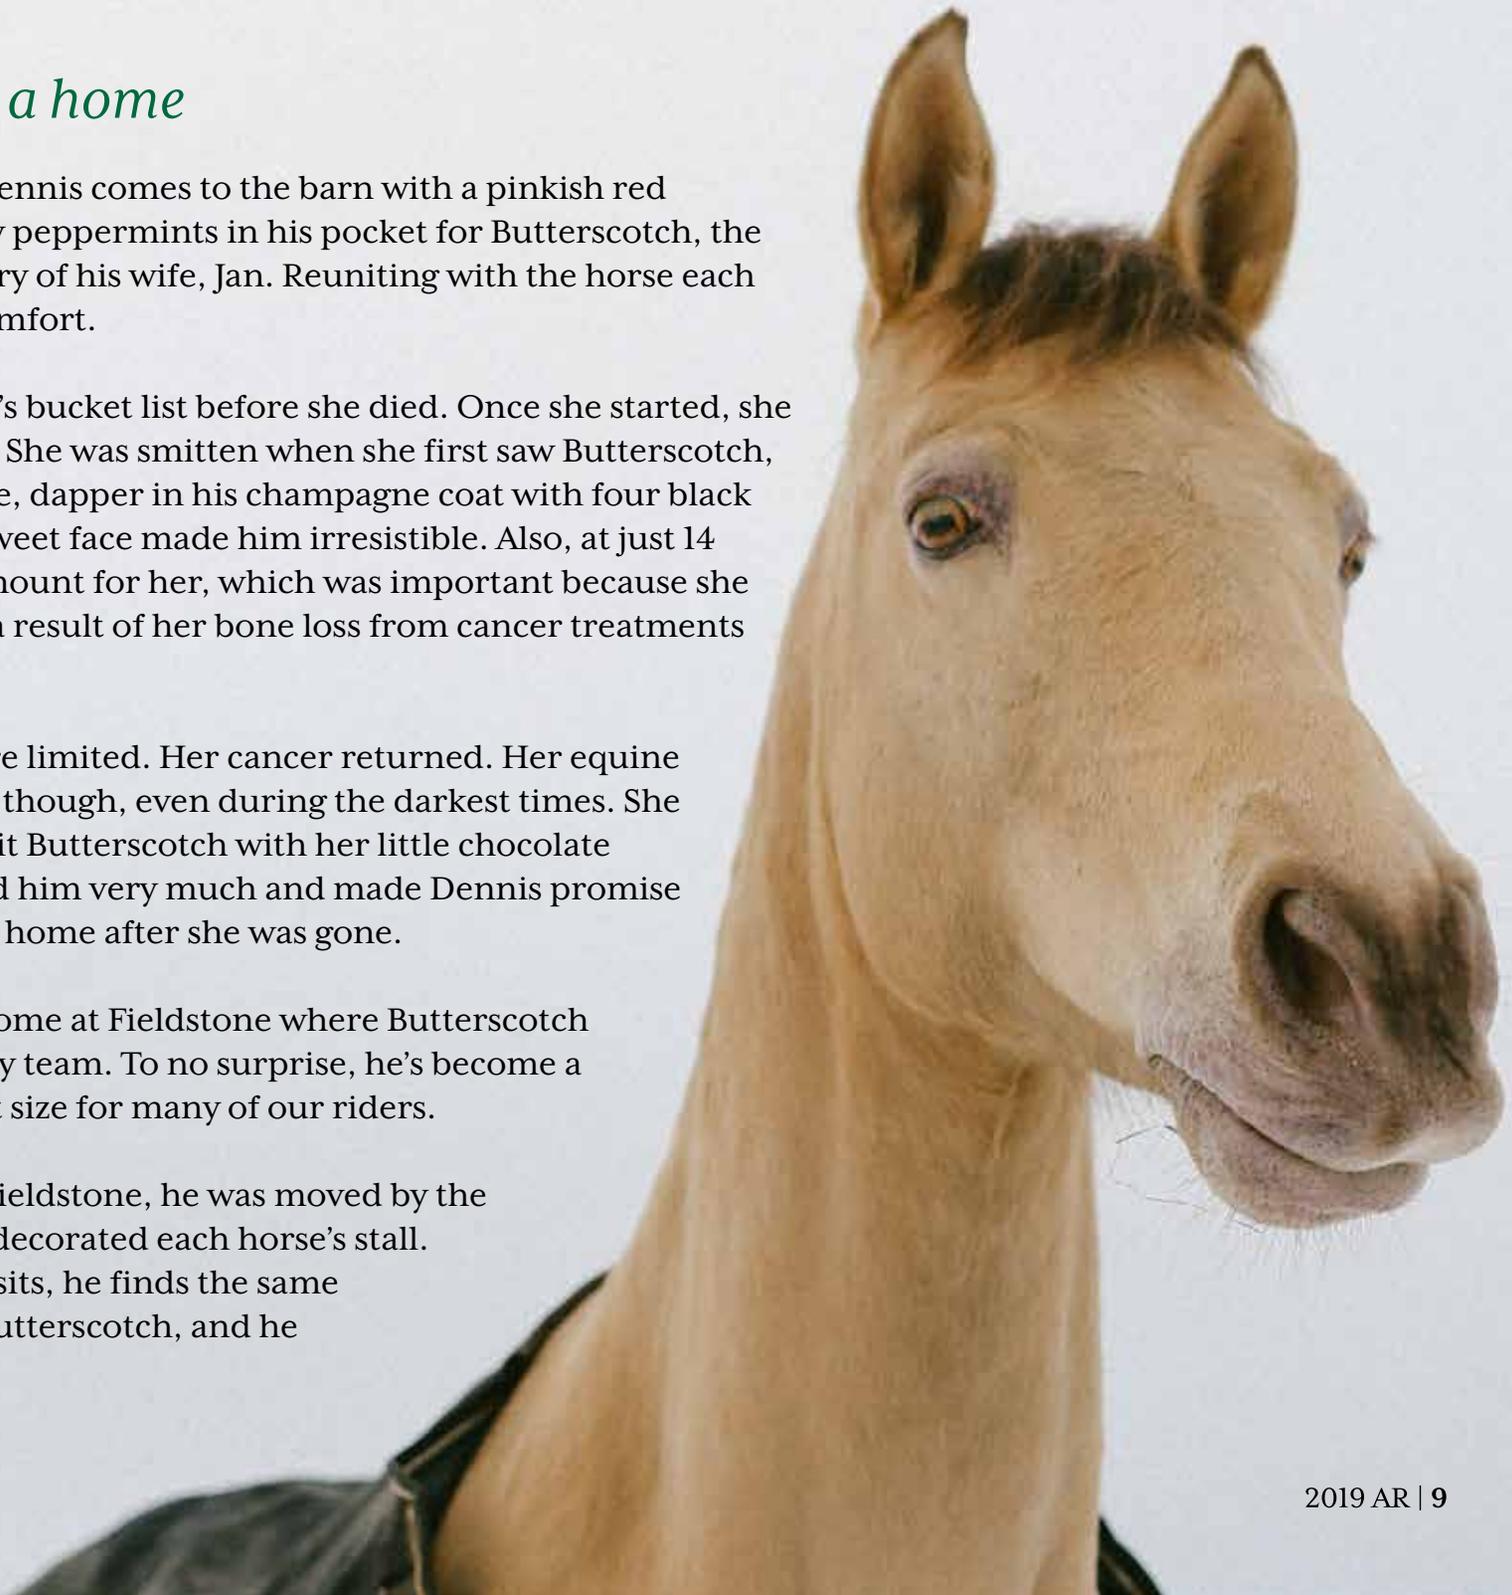

Every Saturday morning, Dennis comes to the barn with a pinkish red Honeycrisp apple and a few peppermints in his pocket for Butterscotch, the horse he donated in memory of his wife, Jan. Reuniting with the horse each week is a great source of comfort.

Learning to ride was on Jan's bucket list before she died. Once she started, she wanted a horse of her own. She was smitten when she first saw Butterscotch, a Kentucky Mountain Horse, dapper in his champagne coat with four black socks. His fine bones and sweet face made him irresistible. Also, at just 14 hands tall, he was an easy mount for her, which was important because she wore a brace on one leg as a result of her bone loss from cancer treatments as a child.

Sadly, Jan's riding years were limited. Her cancer returned. Her equine buddy brightened her days though, even during the darkest times. She and her husband would visit Butterscotch with her little chocolate Chihuahua, Tugg. She loved him very much and made Dennis promise to find Butterscotch a good home after she was gone.

Dennis found that loving home at Fieldstone where Butterscotch is part of the equine therapy team. To no surprise, he's become a favorite and is just the right size for many of our riders.

When Dennis first toured Fieldstone, he was moved by the drawings and notes which decorated each horse's stall. Today, during his weekly visits, he finds the same adoring messages left for Butterscotch, and he knows Jan would be happy.

Betsy inspires innovation

When Betsy was seven, she would hop on a bus near her Cleveland Heights home and travel 30 minutes to Red Raider horseback riding camp in Novelty, just like many kids did back then. This experience was the beginning of a life-long love of horses. Later in life, Betsy went on to a successful career as a dressage rider. Today she operates two well respected dressage farms and her horse, Salvino, likely will be tapped to go to the Olympics next summer.

Betsy's drive for excellence also permeates her professional career. When she graduated from college, Betsy started a legal services company, Litigation Management, Inc., which has grown from a one-person shop to one of the largest companies of its kind in the country with 600 employees.

The combination of her professional expertise and love of horses has had a lasting impact on Fieldstone Farm. In the late 1990's, soon after Fieldstone Farm moved into its state-of-the art facility, Betsy was recruited to help chart the program's long-term strategic plan to ensure a healthy future. Betsy jumped right in and before you knew it, she was on the Board, becoming Board Chair in 2013. Her leadership helped Fieldstone become one of the largest and most respected therapeutic riding centers in the country.

Her focus on innovation spurred new programs and operational procedures which led the industry. She also helped to manage the transition in the early 2000's when Lynnette Stuart became CEO of the organization. To this day, Betsy still consults on various organizational and human resource matters.

Over the years, Betsy has been involved in many ways, but she is most proud of how Fieldstone's culture has become one of national leadership and innovation, which has been a crucial part of the organization's long-term growth and service to the community.
